THE GREAT STORM

Extended From Texas to the Great Lakes,

FROM THE PACIFIC TO NEW YORK

Passengers on Chicago Streetcar Lines Snowbound and Compelled to Remain in the Cars All Night—Severe Weather Beyond the Rockies—Wind Reached a Velocity of Eighty-one Miles an Hour.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 27.—The storm of Tuesday morning was widespread in its effects, the entire state bearing evidences of the fury of the wind. For three hours the velocity ranged from 23 to 35 miles per hour, the maximum being reached at 2:30 a. m. when a velocity of 38 miles was reached, according to the local weather bureau.

The North Congregational church in North Columbus, in course of construction, was totally demolished, and at the Panhandle railroad shops great havoc was created, buildings being moved from their foundations and in some cases demolished.

Out All Night.

CHICAGO, Nov. 27.—Passengers on the Summit street electric road were snowbound in a desolate portion of the city, and some of them were compelled to remain all night in the cars, being unable to reach their homes in South Chicago. Car No. 17, which runs over South Chicago avenue, was stalled at seventy-seventh street at 10 o'clock and remained there until yesterday morning, with five passengers in addition to the motorman and conductor on board. A car of the Seventy-fifth street line shared a similar fate near St. Sinclair avenue, as did also a southbound car at South Chicago avenue and Ninety-seventh street and another at Sixty-seventh street and Vernon avenue. Each of the cars carried passengers who spent the night aboard. When the cars were first stalled they carried the usual number of passengers, but as the hours passed and no indications of progress were given, the majority of the passengers left the cars, continuing the rest of the way of the journey on foot. Some, however, lived a greater distance than did the others, and refused to leave the cars, preferring to spend the night in them to facing the storm.

Damage to Indiana Towns.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 27.—Specials from Indiana report the storm as follows:

At Elwood the casting hall of the glass factory was demolished over the heads of 400 workmen. Only two were injured, Jack Howard and R. Carrington, and they not fatally. The McCoy lamp chimney factory was lifted from its foundation. Much minor damage was done. Loss estimated at $100,000. Seven hundred men are temporarily idle.

At Frankton the roof of the new Clyde windowglass factory was unroofed, business blocks were demolished and the Indiana gas pumping stations were destroyed. Loss, $30,000. Three hundred men rendered idle.

At Alexandria the glass works were badly wrecked, and two large shops of the Union steelplate plant were demolished. Loss not stated.

In the East.

BUFFALO, Nov. 27.—The gale here subsided last night. The damage to property has been very great, but no fatalities have occurred. Most of the loss has been due to the high water in the harbor, caused by the prevailing direction of the wind. The water in the harbor and river rose at least six feet. As a result, the New York Central tracks at the foot of Georgia street have been washed away, and no belt line trains have run all day. The tracks of the Philadelphia and Reading also have been washed out at the same place and trains on that road are stalled there

Blizzard In the West.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 27.—The blizzard subsided Tuesday morning after leaving six to eight inches of snow on the ground, badly crippling railroads and greatly impeding all lines of traffic.

It is learned the storm raged violently through Missouri, Arkansas and Texas. In the latter state it swept over the peaches covering them with snow several inches deep, severely exposing all kinds of live stock to its fury. If the temperature falls much lower there will be great loss of cattle and sheep. As it is there is much suffering.

Force of a Hurricane.

TOLEDO, Nov. 27.—A terrific windstorm reached this city at 2 o'clock yesterday morning which played havoc with telegraph and telephone wires. The streets were strewn with signs and rubbish. Tin roofs were blown off, and the standing walls of a large building recently destroyed by fire were blown down. The wind at one time reached a velocity of 81 miles, and for four hours it registered 64 miles an hour.

Took to Their Cellars.

AKRON, O., Nov. 27.—The severest gale in the history of this city raged here from midnight until 5 a. m. The wind reached a frightful velocity and many persons sought safety in cellars. Many residences and factories were demolished or unroofed. The property loss will be heavy. No one was killed as far as known.

On the Pacific Slope.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 27.—The most severe storm is raging that has visited this side of the Rockies for some time. The weather has been unusually cold during the past few days and cold in places in Nevada, Oregon and Washington. Snow has fallen throughout the last named state, but there has been no interruption of railroad traffic.

Village Blown Away.

BOWLING GREEN, O., Nov. 27.—The Standard Oil company reports over 100 derricks blown down in this field by the storm and state that its loss will reach $100,000. The loss to private operators is enormous. The village of Cygnet in this county was almost entirely blown away.

A Terrific Gale.

SARATOGA, Nov. 27.—A heavy rain storm accompanied by a terrific gale, swept the Adirondacks for over an hour yesterday afternoon. A thunderstorm is in progress.

HIS FIRST LECTURE.

Senator Hill Bows to an Audience of Four Hundred at Milwaukee.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 27.—Senator Hill was greeted by an audience of about 400 people at his first appearance as a public lecturer in this city last night. The prices of admission to the theater were too high, and that is given as an explanation of the rather small attendance. The audience consisted mainly of old-time Democrats, who entertained Senator Hill during the day. The lecture was on the subject of "Liberty," its underlying idea being that the safest kind of liberty and government was that which did not interfere with individual liberty and did not attempt to legislate in matters of personal customs and habits. He spoke at length of the Monroe doctrine, of which he showed himself to be a strong adherent, and proclaimed his sympathy with the Cubans in their present struggle for independence. He denounced the adoration for titles which was growing in certain quarters of America.

JUDGE LYNCH KNOCKED OUT.

Unsuccessful Attempt to Swing Off Prisoners at Abbeville.

ABBEVILLE, S. C., Nov. 27.—An unsuccessful attempt was made yesterday morning by a mob of 30 or 40 men to lynch the prisoners now in jail here charged with the murder of Narissa Bagwell, the young white woman whose body was almost cremated in the building burned near Hadges Tuesday night. But for the coolness and discretion of Jailor Nance and his father, the sheriff, the murderers would have been hanging to trees before sunrise.

The mob came to the jail and aroused the jailer, saying they had a prisoner under commitment. The jailer, suspecting all was not well, immediately left the jail through the back door and notified the sheriff, who summoned the Abbeville Rifles, who promptly responded.

The tread of the soldiers and the voice of Sheriff Nance were too much for the boys who were thirsting for blood, and they quietly went away.

KENTUCKY TRAGEDY.

Half a Dozen Killed and Wounded In a Sunday Fight.

LONDON, Ky., Nov. 27.—News brought here by a messenger from the mountain district tells of a fight with pistols at a church near Manchester, Clay county, on Sunday morning, in which John Boles was killed and his two sons and Robert Helden fatally shot, and John Roberts and Deputy Sheriff Allen, who tried to stop the fight, were slightly wounded. The trouble was the outgrowth of an old grudge. John Roberts and Julius Welch, aged 25, did the shooting

A CUBAN VICTORY.

Details Suppressed by Spanish Authorities.

THIRTY-SIX HOURS' FIGHTING.

Nearly 10,000 Spaniards Fail to Dislodge Half That Number of Insurgents at Paguasco—Train Derailed by Insurgents and Prisoners Liberated—Canefields and Plantations Burned.

NEW YORK, Nov. 27.—A messenger from Cuba by way of Tampa, Fla., brings news of a fight Nov. 19 at Paguasco. The engagement is said to have been of even more importance than the one at Bayamo some months ago, in which General Campos was nearly captured.

The Spanish force, which numbered almost 10,000 men, was led by Generals Valdez, Luque and Aldove. The Cubans under General Gomez, about 4,000 strong, held an advantageous position at the foot of the hill. The fight lasted 36 hours, according to the story, but the Spanish troops were unable to dislodge the Cubans.

General Antonio Maceo, who was in the vicinity, came up at this point, the messenger says, with 3,500 men, and after a fierce conflict the Spaniards were routed. The Cubans then advanced toward Cienfuegos and Trinidad

The particulars of this battle, it is said, were withheld by the Spanish authorities, and even the story written by the correspondent of El Heraldo of Madrid was suppressed. General Aldove is said to have been killed and almost 600 were killed or wounded on each side. General Gomez, it is reported, captured 700 rifles and a considerable supply of ammunition.

Minor Engagements.

HAVANA, Nov. 27.—According to official advices received here, the troops engaged in military operations near Cienfuegos succeeded in capturing considerable valuable correspondence They then gave battle to the insurgents, and the Cuban leader, Aceo, was killed. Official advices also report that the insurgents succeeded in liberating 20 Cuban prisoners during the recent derailing of a train in the Caibarien district of the province of Santa Clara, many persons being killed and wounded at the same time.

Another dynamite outrage has just been reported here. It is claimed that a bomb exploded, blowing up a railway train at some point between Ciego Avila and Moron. No particulars of the affair have been received.

Cienfuegos advices have been received here to the effect that additional canefields and plantations are burning in the vicinity of Soledad. The reports from Cienfuegos do not give details of the alleged burning of the plantations.

The troops which arrived yesterday left today for Matanzas, where they will commence active operation without loss of time.

TO RESTRICT IMMIGRATION.

Restriction League Prepares a Bill With That Object.

BOSTON, Nov. 27.—Hon. Samuel W. McCall has been selected by the executive committee of the Immigration Restriction league to introduce into the national house of representatives a bill prepared by the league to further restrict immigration. This bill adds to the classes at present excluded from the United States the following: "All persons between the ages of 14 and 60 who can not both read and write the English language or some other language."

This provision, if it becomes a law, it is asserted will keep out about 20 per cent of the most undesirable immigrants who now come here. Senator Lodge has been selected to introduce the bill in the senate.

Will Sue For Damages.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 27.—The schooner Joseph W. Foster, which was detained on suspicion of violating the neutrality laws, will sail for Port Tampa as soon as the weather becomes favorable. Captain Whealton will remain here and bring proceedings against this and the Spanish government for illegal detention and defamation of character.

Cuban Sympathizers In Spain.

BARCELONA, Nov. 27.—A sensation has been caused here by the action of the Republican leaders, who have decided to call a great mass meeting for the purpose of condemning the policy of the government in Cuba. It is proposed to issue a manifesto demanding autonomy for Cuba as a sure means of concluding the war on the island.

PRISONERS REVOLT.

Desperate Affray In the Michigan State Prison.

JACKSON, Mich., Nov. 27.—A desperate riot occurred at the state prison Tuesday morning. Deputy Warden Northrup was struck on the head with a hammer and is thought to be fatally injured. Superintendent Coffee of the shirt factory was beaten into insensibility with a club, and Foreman Muller slugged with whatever the convicts could lay their hands on. The enraged prisoners also smashed a score of machines with hammers and iron bars before they were controlled.

There were 100 convicts at work in the shirt factory, but only eight were concerned in the riot. The trouble was caused by Foreman Muller threatening to report Dick Huntley, a 20-year man, for not doing his work properly. Huntley secured a club and without warning knocked Muller down.

The other officers rushed to the foreman's assistance, when several convicts took a hand and the riot became general, but on the appearance of armed keepers the prisoners ceased their murderous efforts and were locked in their cells.

WORK OF PURIFICATION.

The New York City Vigilance League Begins a New Crusade.

A PECULIAR REPLY

Given by a Heartless Turkish Official.

BETTER TO BE KILLED OUTRIGHT

Than to Die of Starvation—Much Evidence Can Be Produced to Corroborate the Statement That the Massacre of Armenians Originated From Central Authorities at Constantinople.

LONDON, Nov 27.—The Chronicle publishes a dispatch from its correspondent at Constantinople, giving an account of a peculiar reply by the Turkish officials. According to the correspondent seven men from the Kharput district applied to the Constantinople authorities for information about the massacres said to have occurred there. The officials were forced to tell them that the outbreaks had been most serious.

When the men expressed a hope that their families were safe the officials replied: "Better that they should have been killed outright than that they should die of famine."

The Times this morning publishes an article written at Erzeroum, dated Nov. 9. The correspondent says:

"The massacre here certainly occurred by order of the authorities, and this order must have emanated originally from the central authorities at Constantinople. Much circumstantial evidence can be produced to corroborate this statement."

The correspondent of The Times, writing from Erzeroum, proceeds to repeat a conversation which he overheard going on between the Turkish soldiers who were guarding his doors. Their statements were to the effect that their officers had ordered them at a given signal to massacre the Armenians. The correspondent then continues:

"I had been visiting the British consulate with Mr. Chambers Sunday afternoon, Nov. 3, when the new outbreak took place. The Armenians again crowded to the American school. A number of persons were killed on this day, the estimates ranging from 18 to 35. The scenes in the cemeteries where the victims have been buried by the sufferers have been heartrending. On Nov. 7 I visited all of the ruined bazaars, going as far as Serai, but during the entire journey I did not see a single Christian."

Estimates of Loss of Life and Property.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 27.—Now that matters seem to be quieting down again here and in the Asiatic provinces, people are beginning to form estimates of the amount of damage done and the number of lives lost during the recent disturbances. Well informed Armenians estimate the losses through the events which have just taken place in Anatolia alone at $50,000,000 and the number of victims at 40,000. Of course these are Armenian estimates, but there seems good reasons for believing that the property destroyed, the number of lives sacrificed and the terrible outrages committed, are far beyond anything hitherto estimated or described

Will Try to Avoid Trouble.

NASHVILLE, Nov. 27.—John Hale, the negro who murdered Thomas Jones, an inoffensive white man, in this city last Sunday, has been tracked down and is now under arrest at Lebanon, 25 miles from here. WAS FATALLY SHOT

THE DISTRESSING ACCIDENT BEFALLS GEORGE E WARREN,

A Prominent and Popular Young Business Man of Prospect—He Dies at Warrensburg Before His Wife Reaches His Side.

(Special to the DAILY STAR.)

PROSPECT, Nov 27—Prospect was greatly shocked early this morning to hear that one of its popular younger citizens, George E Warren, had been accidentally shot, probably fatally, near his father's home in Warrensburg, Delaware county

Mr Warren had gone to his father's home a few days ago to assist his father in some work, and on Tuesday was out hunting accompanied by his father As they were returning home in the evening, George Warren was climbing a fence, with gun in hand when the top rail broke, and in falling Mr Warren discharged the gun, receiving the full contents of the load in the region of the stomach The wounded man was carried to the house and surgical aid summoned but the first impressions of physicians were very unfavorable The examination revealed that some of the shot had pierced internal organs and there was little to do for him, except to palliate his suffering Word was hastened to his wife in this place, and she hastened to his bedside, but ere she had arrived the wounded man had breathed his last The accident occurred about dusk and he died about 9 o'clock—four hours later

Mr Warren was one of Prospect's most active young business men At one time he was engaged in the mercantile trade here, but of late had been engaged in extensively dealing in hay He is very popular with all classes He leaves a devoted young wife

News of his death was confirmed here this forenoon, by a message announcing the funeral arrangements services and burial will take place at Warrensburg at 2 o'clock Thursday A number of our people will attend

OLD MOTHER GOOSE

Held Out at the Presbyterian Church Tuesday Night.

The Grandmother Goose fair at the Presbyterian church was a great success in every way and a goodly sum was realized for the church by the sale made Tuesday afternoon and evening

The different characters of prominence in "Mother Goose" the old mother herself, the old woman who swept the sky, the housewife with the big knife and a dozen others were represented in costume

The various class rooms had been fitted up as booths and in them were sold all styles of fancy work, candies, cakes breadstuffs, etc, while ice cream and a delightful supper also was served

During the evening the Twilight Mandolin club rendered several very pretty and taking selections which were among the most enjoyable features of the evening

From early in the evening until a late hour the church was crowded and buying and selling went on at a most lively rate reminding those present of the other remarkable financial success of last week the Chrysthanthemum show

MITCHELL'S MIXTURE

ANOTHER DISCOVERY OF A SO CALLED ELIXIR OF LIFE.

The Fluid a Result of Ten Years' Experimenting—Applied Both Externally and Internally—His Great Ambition.

Not for many years has the medical world been so interested in any discovery as it is interested in what is now known among the profession as "Mitchell's fluid." Its scope is vast, its powers and its claim apparently well founded. These are not only in New York but wherever medicine is practiced have readers interested in this mixture, which, it is believed, will cure consumption and will prove a most valuable aid in the treatment of special diseases.

And while the world is discussing this new discovery Dr Mitchell, who practices in New York, talks freely of the mixture," as he terms it, tells what it has done for years He goes on experimenting, for he is not satisfied yet He believes himself on the eve of making a discovery which may be the means of blotting out a hideous disease

To do this is the dream of a doctor's life As he emptied a small quantity of the fluid into a vial containing a small amount of his now famous mixture and watched the chemical operation by which the yellow fluid was transformed into a darker liquid, he remarked

"I don't want to be too sanguine, but I honestly believe that before many months I will have so far advanced in my researches that something very like that red fluid you see there will do much to lessen the misery of this unhappy world of ours I hope so anyhow"

He goes out each day with the conventional silk hat and the conventional instrument case, but when the last call has been made and the last office patient is gone he descends to the cellar of his home with J W Higgins, a chemist and in the stuffy, darkened room below the pavement the two work, sometimes until day a

Dr Mitchell has a habit of patting his left knee as he talks, and when he becomes interested in his conversation he uses it as a resonant, that should not suggest the connection with that left knee it would call for an apology or a duel

Phthisis," said the doctor, patting the knee with the regularity of a pendulum, "is consumption or tuberculosis—it shall be one—and the fluid which I claim cures this disease is a chemical combination of the hydrogen, or hydrogen sulfide in solution and the resultant fluid is what is now called a physician's 'Mitchell's fluid'

"This fluid is a pale yellow—something like chartreuse I'll show you new brew"

The doctor stopped patting his knee and brought forth a large bottle, from which he poured into a glass a small quantity of the fluid

"Now this" he resumed, "has a hydrochloric acid reaction and a specific gravity of 10 22 to 10 25 I made my discovery after years of patient research and experiment It makes me tired at times to think of the labor I performed but Higgins and I kept at it, and we succeeded Yes, we have certainly succeeded

USE OF CRAPE PAPER

ARTISTIC EFFECTS PRODUCED WITH THIS PLIABLE MATERIAL.

Pleasing Results Obtained From Colored Paper Shades For Gas Globes and Lamps. Directions In Detail For Making a Chrysanthemum Shade—Pretty Favors.

Comparatively few readers have ever seen, probably, a paper party carried out in all its details, but those who have will know that wonderfully artistic effects have been produced with that pliable material, crape paper. In the decoration of the parlor, pleasing effects in color are gained by the shades for gas globes or lamps. Only general directions can be given for these shades, as there are so many sizes, but following is advice on the subject given in The Ladies' Home Journal:

Cut a strip of asbestus paper 2 inches wide and long enough to fit snugly around the larger part of the globe. Cut a strip of crape paper the same length as the asbestus band and 10 inches wide. Glue it to the band 2 inches below the edge and ruffle the heading and lower edge of crape by pulling the paper with the right hand between the thumb and finger of the left hand. Crease the paper under about one inch below the band and stretch between the fingers the same as the edge. This gives a more graceful shape and also keeps the paper from coming in contact with the glass shade, which is sometimes hot enough to scorch anything that may touch it.

To make a chrysanthemum globe shade, illustrated by the authority quoted, a wire frame made the shape of a globe is used, quite open at the top and the bottom ring the size for any shade frame, so that it will fit on the lamp ring. This is first covered with crape and cut in slender pointed petals like a chrysanthemum, making them in strips instead of around a circle as for the flowers. These petals are curled by placing them against the knee and rolling the round end of a hatpin over them, from the point toward you. After you have a number of strips curled begin gluing them to the globe, commencing at the top and going round and round closely so the petals fall together. By experimenting with a few strips one can readily judge how many will be required. A row of leaf green petals around the bottom of the globe adds an effective and artistic finish. To make tulips or daffodils, much the better way is to take natural flowers and cut a pattern from them.

The same idea carried out in favors has resulted in some charming trifles, among which is described and sketched a bag and fan. The former is made over a thin silk lining. To make one of nice size use one-quarter yard of crape paper and the same amount of silk. Hang it with No. 5 ribbon from the waist, and trim with tiny bunches of rosebuds. An ordinary Japanese fan, with an oval shaped handle, may be trimmed with crape paper on both sides. On one side a big bow of crape paper and a cluster of rosebuds may be placed.

Banana Cream.

This is a very quickly made sweet, and when bananas are plentiful not extravagant. Dissolve half an ounce of gelatin in half a teacupful of boiling water, add to it the grated rind and juice of a lemon and loaf sugar to taste. Put this with 6 peeled bananas, cut in inch pieces, into a saucepan, and simmer for ten minutes. Then take half a pint of cream and beat it up. When the bananas and gelatin are cold, wet a mould. Pour in first the cream and then the fruit, set it in a cool place or in an ice box till thoroughly set. Turn out to serve.

Washing Colored Prints.

Colored prints and muslins, likely to fade when washed, can be "set" with boiling water, and their pristine brightness never afterward lost, no matter how often the washing. This is especially true of blue, and mourning prints of white figures on a black ground so treated will be black to the end of the chapter. This assertion is made in The Circle.

Salted Almonds.

Put a tablespoonful best butter, or a teaspoonful olive oil, smoking hot, in a frying pan, add one-half pound Jordan almonds blanched. When the almonds become brown, sprinkle over them one tablespoonful salt and stir and shake all are a golden brown. Oil

VALUE OF DUET PLAYING.

Specially Adapted to Morbidly Sensitive Pupils—Improvements on the Old Style.

The full value of duet playing has not yet been appreciated by the majority of teachers. To say nothing of the manifold expressions of musical beauty to be gained, the effect of self poise is not to be overlooked. Many teachers engaged in turning out all sorts and conditions of soloists could get practical advantage from this point. Every class has a quota of morbidly sensitive pupils, who generally prove intractable on their first appearance before the public and fail dismally, doing the pedagogue's reputation no good.

Much irritation could have been avoided and more justice done the scholar if a well chosen duet had been the subject of the debut. The pupil would have lost a goodly part of his self consciousness, for the aplomb to shift the blame to the other fellow is strong in humanity, and the audience would have received a measure of gratification. At this point it may be remarked that duet playing is more generally appreciated by any audience than the solo performances of half fledged pianists.

Another fact to be noticed is the truth that ensemble playing improves the sense of rhythm. The attenuated rubatos so characteristic of amateurs can be in a degree reformed and brought within proper bounds, according to the attention paid in this regard. The quality of music should also be thought of. Old style duets, in which the primo had all the music and the secondo player beat out monotonous accompaniments in a beer hall style, are no longer considered artistic. Works should be selected in which each part has a well defined individuality, and such works can be found. A writer in The Etude, and authority for the foregoing, explains that there are also may four hand arrangements of chamber compositions, scenes from operas, etc., falling within the scope of medium grade players. While there are many good duets in the easier grades, there should be more. Modern composers are sinning in this respect, and especially those familiar with the handling of orchestral material.

Kitchen Dressers.

One of the most convenient pieces of furniture, and one that is fast going out of fashion, is the kitchen dresser. To be most useful it should extend to the ceiling and have shelves behind glass doors to the distance of about three feet from the floor, whence it extends out counterwise, and the space beneath is generally devoted to drawers and low closets, which are most convenient for holding those pots and pans required frequently for cooking. If the kitchen is not too large, and the kitchen dresser is properly placed, it will be easy to reach these pots and pans to the stove. In a kitchen 12 feet by 14 the dresser may be one side of the room, the sink on the other and the range on a third side, yet all be of easy access to the other. A kitchen table may occupy the wall opposite the range. According to an estimate made in the New York Tribune, the cost of such a dresser as this, made of common pine, will not be less than $10 and may be $15, made by a carpenter to order. This dresser is especially useful, because it keeps articles shut up free from dust that in German kitchens and sometimes in kitchens in this country are hung about the room or put on open shelves, where they cannot be kept clean, as they should be. In the dresser are kept those dishes, pans, pots and other articles that may be hourly needed.

Fried Chicken With Cream Gravy.

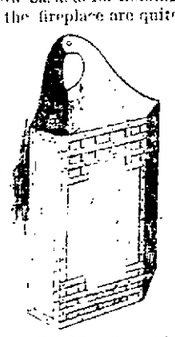
In the first place, select a young and tender chicken, cut it up as if for fricassee and season each piece with salt and pepper and dredge it very lightly with flour. Melt 2 tablespoonfuls of butter in a hot frying pan and lay in pieces of chicken enough to cover the bottom. Cover the chicken and let it fry until it is a rich golden brown on one side. It will take 5 or 6 minutes or even longer. Then turn it, add more butter if necessary, and let the chicken fry on the other side. When the chicken is cooked, lay it in a low, somewhat pyramidal, heap on a hot platter and stir a heaping spoonful of flour in the butter left in the frying pan. Add 2 cups of rich milk or cream to the frying pan and when it boils up strain this sauce into a saucepan in which a tablespoonful of minced parsley has been put. Let the sauce boil up once more and turn it around the chicken on the platter or serve it in a bowl with the chicken. The latter is the old fashioned way of serving cream sauce and fried chicken and in some ways the most satisfactory.

Cheese Puddings.

Beat well 2 eggs with half a teacupful of cream. Add a little salt and cayenne and half a teacupful of rich, grated cheese. Mix well together, scatter with bread crumbs and bake till a delicate brown. This is a capital savory.

A Corner Woodbox.

Handsome willow baskets for holding logs of wood for the fireplace are quite expensive, and a useful substitute that is also decorative may be had in a pine box that is made to fit into one of the corners of the chimney where it juts out into the room. It is in three sided form, with narrow, extra sides inserted at the angles where the front and backs join.



HOME-MADE WOODBOX.

As illustrated in The Household, any boy who is handy with tools will be able to make one of these boxes. If pine is the material used, it can be painted to match the woodwork or stained a deep cherry stain. Nail some strips of ordinary box strap iron around each of the sides to ornament them, and arrange in lengthwise bars on the front.

A VISTA OF FASHION.

WINTER STYLES REPRESENTED IN FOREIGN AND HOME PRODUCTIONS.

Distinguishing Features Are Fur, Jet, Velvet and Lace—The New Painted Velvets Carnacle Trimmings and Fur Bodices. The Newest Sleeves and Skirts.

The winter fashions are no longer like the Campbells of lyric fame. They have arrived. Their distinguished features are fur and jet and velvet and lace. The new printed velvets, with their many colored flowers, are only fit to make opera cloaks. They look like chair coverings when used for dresses, and the dignity of the humblest woman revolts against wearing anything suggestive of being sat upon. But for theater cloaks these velvets are admirable, and they call for sable trimmings and jet epaulets, while the white satin lining is indispensable to their complete success.

In spite of all temptations to devote one's self to the convenient cape, the jacket claims increased attention, especially the loose coats in cloth with ramped velvet sleeves and a lining of ivory satin.

Recent importations make it apparent that there is a prevalence of carnacle trimmings outlined with jet and also a wonderful demand for the new printed velveteens. These, with pine patterns on pale grounds, are indeed pleasing and inexpensive—an unusual combination.

Very chic indeed are the new gowns with fur bodices. An elegant affair seen had sleeves of ermine and the bodice and epaulets of sable, the jeweled belt and the skirt of velvet just catching the light tone of the sable. It is from just such costly models as this one that oldever women gain ideas for the creation of pleasing but inexpensive garments. The one described, for instance, makes one woman wonder if her old sealskin coat could not make a successful reappearance as such a bodice with sable sleeves. Another woman decides that she will have an ermine bodice made like the model, with sleeves and skirt of tan colored face cloth. It will not be very expensive, and it will be extremely pleasing.

A quite new gown has a hem and bodice of carnacle. The bodice fashioned with long shoulder sleeves and outlined with jet, while the skirt and sleeves are of black face cloth, and on the neck there is a collar turned over with tabs, as are many of the collars of today.

Old evening dresses may be transferred into new tea gowns with distinguished effect. In one of these successful transformations the bodice is filled up with a transparent yoke of cream colored lace in points, and over the shoulders are long scarfs of black chiffon, to give the easeful suggestiveness indispensable to the tea gown. Around the waist is a belt of jet. It is made of brocade in blue and black, with an infinitesimal line of black running through it.

The sleeves of some of the new evening gowns are decidedly shorter and the latest sleeve for day gowns is the Marie Antoinette style fitted closely above the elbow with a short draped puff at the top. It seems safe to prophesy smaller sleeves in the near future. Of course, large full puffs are still worn, but they have lost their stiffening. These sleeves are very long and shaped in a long point, which falls over the hand and is often made dressy by a frill of lace. Skirts, while showing some variety in the cut, remain very full. Skirts of evening dresses are often made quite plain; others are trimmed down either side of the front breadth. Pleasing gowns for evening wear are made of flowered satins with a Louis XVI coat, or a long pointed waist, with full panniers in the skirt and close sleeves with a full short puff at the top. Chine silks, which are not so expensive, are very popular for evening gowns, and make very good copies of the old time dresses. A waist which can be worn with a last season's skirt, especially if it is white, is made of white china silk scattered over with a chintz pattern and trimmed with fine, creamy lace. Another combination for extending the usefulness of an old skirt is a bodice of white moiree line de soie striped with narrow black lace insertion. Black velvet jet applique forms a band around the decollete neck and turquoise blue satin sleeves give the touch of color.

Iron Bedsteads.

Iron bedsteads take on now many colors, the virgin white in which they were oftenest seen yielding frequently to pale pink or blue or green to harmonize with the furnishings and draperies.

POSSIBILITIES IN TIN PAILS.

Few of Their Good Points as Specified In Good Housekeeping.

Did you ever realize the wealth of usefulness in a tin pail that can be purchased at any 5 or 10 cent store? Then, when you think of the pails of varied sizes and quality to be obtained from our large housekeeping establishments, their possibilities begin to dawn upon you. The old woman who bought a dozen gimlets because they were handy to have in the family may be laughed at by those who know not the value of a gimlet as a gimlet, to say nothing of how they can be utilized as hooks, and easily adjusted in their place on the wall or in the corner. But she who buys her dozen of pails can afford to be laughed at and exclaim, "Let them laugh that win."

Now for a few of their good points. First, they are inexpensive, easily cleaned, have covers and handles. If one lives in a flat without a cellar, they are worth a small fortune. They are invaluable for liquids, fruits, food of all kinds, and are handy receptacles for left overs that are placed in the ice chest, when all articles should be kept covered, to avoid filling the chest with odors, and also to keep food from poisonous gases.

Having handles, they may be hung on hooks out of the way, and to utilize space, if the pantry be small. Try them for flour, meal, all dry stuffs, bread, cake, sugar, oatmeal, rice, farina, etc. Pails are also found useful to put articles to cool in in cellar or out of doors. Cover them, and the contents are safe. They are easily kept clean and bright, give such a compact, secure feeling, and make one's pantry look so tidy.

One can defy flies and water bugs. Indeed there is no better method known to avoid the annoyances of those pests than plenty of tin pails. Every bride ought to number at least a dozen among her bridal gifts, as they are of infinitely more value than an equal number of cheap silver articles. But the uses of tin pails are "too numerous to mention." Give them a trial, and, like Oliver Twist, the housekeeper "will still cry for more."

Fur Trimmed Coats.

This is a fur season, and fur is used as trimming on every style of gown and coat. All fur jackets are, of course, in order for very cold weather, but there are many women who think them too warm in this climate and vastly prefer the cloth ones with the fur ornaments. With the revers of fur, fur cuffs and muff, a cloth jacket is a very smart garment. The fur heads are also used, and the latest fad is to have them made into buttons. Light tan cloth, with mink or sable trimmings, or black, with Persian lamb, is most desirable. In New York, is The Herald, which illustrates fashion's latest, explains, the jackets are much shorter than the coats of last winter, and have either the ripple back or the coat effect.

The winter jackets, fur trimmed, will look warmer and also be warmer, made double breasted instead of with merely a flap and invisible buttons and are more comfortable with a silk lining.

Preserves In Winter.

Remember that the preserves must not be kept in a warm place after they have been prepared for the winter. Such a thing as an absolutely airtight material being practically unknown, they should be placed where it is cool and dry, for if sealed over so closely they will in time heat through and ferment if kept where it is warm.

GOWNS FOR YOUNG GIRLS.

Winter Fashions For Children Copied After the Styles of Their Elders.

Gowns for small girls and their clothes in general are especially interesting just at present, and while there is not unlimited variety in the styles they follow in the wake of fashion closely enough to need particular consideration twice a year. The problem, however, does not present very many difficulties beyond the price, now that everything they need can be found ready made in the most approved fashion. Very full skirts, basques and puffed sleeves are as decidedly a feature of the young girl's fashions as they are of those for her elders, and if she is just entering her teens she can have them all combined in one gown. The skirts are gored to hang in full folds at the bottom, except for girls under 10 years of age, when they are made of straight breadths plainly hemmed and reach just below the knee. The waists of these gowns are either cut square in the neck to wear over a white guimpe, made with a yoke and belt and collar of plain cloth, silk or velvet, or with a plain waist, simply gathered around the neck and into the belt.

French plaids, serges and homespun materials are much used for school dresses, and all the fashionable rough goods, as well as plain cloths, are made up into more dressy gowns, which are trimmed with velvet, in a contrasting color, and edges of fur, not unlike the grown up gowns. Rows and rows of narrow velvet ribbon make a stylish trimming, and ribbed velvet ribbon is especially pretty for bows on crepon and soft wool gowns.

Shades of red, brown and green are the popular colors, and printed velvets in oriental coloring appear in combination with many of the plain materials. They are used, like plain velvets, for gathered vests, revers and collars, and brown velvet, with brown fur edging, is not an unusual trimming for a bright red dress. Plaid silks make pretty vests and yokes for tricot and serge gowns and plain velvet is a pretty contrast for the bright plaid woolens. Dressy gowns for dancing school parties are made of striped and flowered taffeta, with plain, straight skirts and guimpe waists, finished at the neck with a wide velvet collar. A school dress of plaid, illustrated in the New York Sun along with other styles, has two tucks in the skirt and a full waist, with a gathered collar of shot silk, which also forms a plait down the front. Another gown of mixed brown and red wool is trimmed across the waist with bands of brown velvet, which trim the epaulets. A more dressy gown of cornflower blue fancy wool has fawn colored cloth bretelles over the shoulders and carried down the skirt in front. Over this are little pointed tabs of cornflower blue velvet, strapped across at intervals, and the collar and belt are also of velvet.

Coats for girls under 12 years of age are long enough to cover the dress entirely, and are made of rough and plain cloths, which are very thick, soft and glossy. Velvets, too, are used for small coats, and green, ruby red and brown are popular colors, and fur is the trimming for both cloth and velvet. Ermine is pretty on dark blue velvet coats and brown fur on the red and green. Tibet fur, both black and white, is especially pretty for children's garments and a trimming of mink tails makes a green cloth coat very stylish. There are pretty reefer jackets of navy blue cloth for the warmer days and stylish jackets of cloth in different colors for the older girls. A little cloak of dark red cloth is belted in at the waist and has two capes cut out in points on the shoulders and trimmed with Persian lamb.

Poached Eggs.

To poach eggs in the form of a ball instead of the usual flat form is a knack known to many clever cooks. The water is heated to boiling and then stirred rotarily until a whirlpool is produced, into the hollow heart of which the egg is skillfully dropped. The motion of the water coagulates the albumen or white instantly into a circular covering for the unbroken yolk.

Corn Soup.

One tablespoonful of butter, one of flour, worked well together; add the juice of an onion, a teaspoonful of salt and a saltspoonful of pepper; a quart of boiling milk. Add to this a can of sweet corn and boil the whole until of a creamy thickness.

Household Brevities.

Wash the oilcloth occasionally with skimmilk. This softens and prevents it from cracking besides producing a gloss.

A rather dark, somber carpet will be found best to go in a room that is very full of furniture.

Silk smacks made to look like flowers are still fashionable for the tall piano lamps.

Rice water is an excellent starch for the fine muslins and laces so much in fashion just now.

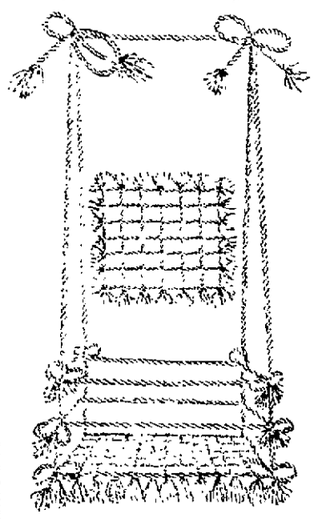
Patent leather shoes may be kept in order if they are dusted after each time of wearing. Put a drop or two of olive oil on a piece of flannel, rub well into the leather, then polish with a silk duster. This preserves the leather cracking and makes it soft and durable.

A NURSERY SWING.

It Delights the Children and Is Easily and Cheaply Made.

A nursery swing, like one originally sketched for The Household, is a present to delight the heart of any child. It is made with the woven seat of rope work, which is done after the method of kindergarten mats.

A good way is to arrange all the ropes which run one way across the top of a box, and tack each end of each rope to the edge of the box rim, and weave the cross ropes in and out through the fastened ropes, tying all the various ends of the various ropes with a knot to the last rope it crosses, and bringing the end.



A SWING FOR THE NURSERY.

If desired, the seat may be made on a frame, which will keep the outer edge firmly in place. It is hung up by four ropes, one at each corner. Two ropes are tied across each side, back and front with bowknots and fringe. In this way the child in the swing will not fall out. The child can be placed in the swing and his feet put through under the rope cross piece.

The swing may be hung in a doorway and looped up, or taken down (unhooked) when not in use. Only two hooks will be necessary, as the four ropes may be hung on one cross rope. It can, of course, be put up in the summer time out of doors, on a tree, framework or a porch, but, according to the authority quoted, is more particularly designed for use in the nursery.

Lemon Juice For Corns and Bunions.

There must be some efficacy in the following, for it is annually advised in various medical journals: A piece of lemon or stale bread moistened with lemon juice, bound on a corn, will cure it. Renew night and morning. The first application will produce soreness, but if treatment is persisted in for a reasonable length of time a cure will be effected. The discomfort caused by sore and tender feet may be lessened, if not entirely cured, by applying slices of lemon to the feet. To cure chilblains, take a piece of lemon, sprinkle fine salt over it and rub the foot well. Repeat if necessary.

A Fancy Bag.

There are bags and bags, and one of the most unique is suggested in an illustration in The Seasons. This bag is made of cigar strings. Twenty-four cigar strings about 13½ inches long are tacked first at the ends on narrow satin-net ribbon of good quality, leaving small spaces between, so that a piece about 13½ inches wide is made. This is then stretched on a wooden board and fastened to the two foundation ribbons with drawing pins and plaited together with somewhat darker cigar strings. Narrow satin-net ribbon secures also the ends of the cross strings. The foundation ribbons on the square piece of plaiting thus made are turned over to the left side and a lining of red or black silk sewed in with fancy stitches (herringbone or coral stitch) in contrasting silk. Three-quarters of an inch from the outer edge a run for strings to draw is sewed out. Black lace 3 inches wide outlined with red and yellow silk is sewed softly at the outer run line to the lining. Bow of silk matches the strings together.

Mayonnaise Dressing.

This recipe, according to an high authority as Mrs. Rorer, never fails: Put the yolks of 2 eggs in a perfectly clean bowl or plate. Add a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt and add gradually, drop by drop, a gill of salad oil. Now add a few drops of vinegar and continue adding oil until you have the desired quantity. Add a gram of red pepper and allow in all a tablespoonful of vinegar to each gill of oil. If you wish the dressing light in color, a few drops of lemon juice will give you the desired results.

Hanging lace bags in which to keep finger rings at night is a new and useful fancy for the toilet table.

ASSIST NATURE a little now and then in removing offending matter from the stomach and bowels and you thereby avoid a multitude of distressing derangements and diseases, and will have less frequent need of your doctor's service.

Of all known agents for this purpose, Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the best. Once used, they are always in favor. Their secondary effect is to keep the bowels open and regular, not to further constipate, as is the case with other pills. Hence, their great popularity with sufferers from habitual constipation, piles and their attendant discomfort and manifold derangements. The "Pellets" are purely vegetable and perfectly harmless in any condition of the system. No care is required while using them; they do not interfere with the diet, habits of occupation, and produce no pain, griping or shock to the system. They act in a mild, easy and natural way and there is no reaction afterward. Their help lasts.

The Pellets cure biliousness, sick and bilious headache, dizziness, costiveness, or constipation, sour stomach, loss of appetite, coated tongue, indigestion, or dyspepsia, windy belchings, "heartburn," pain and distress after eating, and kindred derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels. In proof of their superior excellence, it can be truthfully said, that they are always adopted as a household remedy after the first trial. Put up in sealed, glass vials, therefore always fresh and reliable. One little "Pellet" is a laxative two are mildly cathartic. As a "dinner pill," to promote digestion, or to relieve distress from overeating, take one after dinner. They are tiny, sugar-coated granules; any child will readily take them.

Accept no substitute that may be recommended to be "just as good." It may be better for the dealer, because of paying him a better profit, but he is not the one who needs help.

Talk and Deeds.

"This church, brethren," said the Rev. Dr. Cloudman, "when all the seats are full, holds exactly 756 persons, without counting the preacher, the choir or the organist. The seats all appear to be full this morning. This makes it easy to compute that the exact number of persons in the congregation who did not kneel when the preacher said, 'Let us pray,' a few minutes ago was 753. Let us sing in conclusion:

"Must I be carried to the skies
On flowery beds of ease?"

THANKS-GIVING NECKWEAR.

Going to eat turkey with your best girl are you? Perfectly proper, but how about that tie? Don't you think it needs replacing? Don't you think you would enjoy your dinner all the more wearing one of the handsome new ties just received by us? Cheap, too, 50c buys your choice out of hundreds. We're a little bit stuck on our neckwear---always had an idea we carried the best assorted stock in the city, never had cause to change our mind either.

NOTICE--Our store will be open until noon only on Thanksgiving day.

THANKSGIVING STAR.

Thursday's STAR, on account of the Thanksgiving holiday, will be issued at 9:30 a. m. Patrons may expect delivery in all parts of the city before noon. In the afternoon the office will remain closed.

Owing to the early issue the STAR counting rooms will remain open until 9 o'clock this evening, to accommodate those who have copy for tomorrow's paper.

Advertisers desiring a change of display advertising or who have new advertisements for display will please file copy tonight. It will be impossible to change copy brought in Thursday morning.

After digesting their Thanksgiving dinner tomorrow Congressman Harris, John E. Hopley, Attorney General Monnett and Chas. W. McCracken will leave Bucyrus for Washington, D. C Mr. Hopley goes as Uncle Stephen's private secretary and will also be a candidate for the postmastership of the house, or will pick up anything else he finds lying around loose. His friends, Monnett and McCracken go along to aid and abet him.

Governor-elect Bradley is out of the vice presidential race. It has been discovered that there is a law in Kentucky making it necessary for a new election should the governor resign before his term expires. At the end of two years, should he resign, the lieutenant governor could act as governor. Bradley has therefore retired, which adds to the doubt as to who will be McKinley's running mate.

Hon. Thomas B. Reed, in an interview, says that congress will want to hear from the administration, before the matter of finance is taken up, and adds this bit of sarcasm: "In the face of the past successes on the administration's part during the recent two years, it would be immodest, almost invidious, for congress to attempt to take the lead in so important a matter."

Governor-elect Bushnell will be forgiven for refusing to pay $1,000 a year rent for a house to live in during his term of office. Few people believe that a man should be robbed because he is financially able to stand it.

Senator Peffer is trying to reform the congressional funeral. He suggests more tears and less champagne.

The horseless carriage has been taken back to Chicago on a freight train.

Debs says there will never be another great railway strike. In which case there will probably never be another Debs.

It is announced that the president's message will be longer than usual this year. It is probably intended as a compensation for the shortage in democratic votes.

Women's Love for Odd Pieces.
[Cleveland Leader.]

The elopement of the "one-armed and one-legged champion bicycle rider of the world" with a well-known and popular young lady, of good social standing in a nice Ohio town, is a reminder that in some respects the New Woman is very unlike the old man. It is new enough to elope with a champion bicycle rider. That indicates that the wheels in the fair eloper's head were going around in the fashionable way. But it is very unmanly to elope with a one-armed and one-legged lover.

Imagine a man who had a good home, popular in society, and generally comfortable surroundings eloping with a one-armed and one-legged champion "lady rider" of bicycles! Whoever yet, in all the tangled history of elopements, knew of a case where the bride lacked two limbs? When and where did man ever show such capacity for devotion to fragmentary objects of affection as women, new as well as old, advanced as well as old-fashioned, seem to possess?

That is one radical difference between the sexes which appear likely to survive the tailor-made costumes and the crank-made notions of the day. It is likely to exist when the "New Woman" shall have passed far away into the limbo of forgotten freaks.

Just Like Wine.
[Fremont News.]

THE MARION DAILY STAR celebrated its nineteenth birthday Saturday, finishing eleven continuous years under the efficient management of the ever hustling W. G. Harding. The STAR is like wine, it improves with age, and there are no better dailies printed in any of the smaller cities than the STAR. The paper is a credit to Marion and to the publisher; the people down there know it and "push it along." Long live the STAR.

It's Now a Bear.
[Delaware Herald.]

The supposed lioness which has been terrorizing the farmers living along the line of Delaware and Marion counties, in Thompson township, is now believed to be a bear. Mr. Willower, a prominent farmer living in the edge of Marion county, saw the animal crossing a field on his farm, and he is of the opinion that it is a black bear. People are very reluctant about pursuing his bearship, and he is having things his own sweet way.

Has Advertised Marion.
[Fostoria Times.]

The MARION STAR has entered upon its nineteenth volume as a daily publication, eleven of which have benefited the public under the present management. The STAR is noted far and wide for its twinkling qualities and has advertised Marion until the fair fame of the city is creditably established far and wide.

THE NIGHT OWLS

Danced at the People's Rink, Tuesday Night.

The old Night Owls and several accessions to their ranks danced at the State Street rink, Tuesday evening.

The music was furnished by the Marion Grand orchestra and a program of twenty dances was carried out which occupied the last hours of that day and extended into the early hours of the present.

The reunion, as it might be called, was highly enjoyed by all present and it is a surety that Tuesday night's affair was but the forerunner of many similar occasions which will be had during the coming winter.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Kling, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Turney, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Culbertson, Mr and Mrs. V. E. Dombaugh, Mr. and Mrs C. E. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Wiley, Mr. and Mrs F. MRS. POLEAT RETRACTS.

Constrained by Her Husband's Parishioners to Explain Her Words.

Mrs. E. M. Poleat, wife of the Rev. E. M. Poleat of the Calvary Baptist church of New Haven, sprang into notoriety recently by her utterance, "I would rather send my boys to hell than to Yale college." She has this letter in The Yale News:

Editors Yale News:

I have been informed that my words are being used on the campus to discredit Christianity and Christian work, and I have been asked to say in The News what I said to the representative students in conversation. This I cheerfully do. Two statements have been attributed to me: The first, that more young men are ruined at Yale than at any place I know of; the second, that I do not consider it a safe place to send boys.

Many persons have interpreted these two statements as an indiscriminate charge of immorality against the students of the college. No such charge has been made or intended in saying what I said. I am not unaware of a strong Y. M. C. A. in the college and of high religious life maintained by a large body of students. I rejoice in these things, and I should be sorry to embarrass one whit, by my words of regret, the noble young men who appreciate the high educational and religious privileges afforded them, and who are using these for the best self culture and the best good of their fellow students. All honor to these young men who stand for Christ and true culture in the midst of the university. My statements were made in view of facts of which you are well aware, for in your issue of [illegible] you say:

"There is unquestionably are excessive drinking, gambling and dissipation among some undergraduates here."

MRS. EDWIN M. POLEAT.

This letter is regarded as a partial retraction on the part of Mrs. Poleat. Several influential members of the Calvary Baptist church had signified an intention of asking for the resignation of their pastor unless his wife made a retraction.—New York Sun.

A Nicaragua Canal Bill.

Representative Barham of California said recently in Washington:

"In my opinion the Nicaraguan canal question will be the most important matter brought to the attention of the next congress. I have drafted a bill which I will introduce to provide for the construction of this canal. This bill, I think, will not be open to objection. My bill will provide for absolute government ownership of the canal. Under its provisions bonds will be issued as fast as necessary to carry on the work of building the canal. The total issue of bonds is not to exceed $100,000,000. I believe in paying the Nicaraguan Canal company a fair price for their concessions from Nicaragua and Costa Rica, and paying them in cash or stock, as they elect. I do not believe in giving them any exorbitant sum, however, for what they have already accomplished.

"If the United States do not build this canal, they will be the laughing stock of the world."—New York Sun.

Millionaire—About $100,000.

I. B. CARLISLE, THE CASH GROCER.

Thanksgiving.

AT this time of the year, when thoughts are turning to Thanksgiving, we feel we should especially express our thanks to the people of Marion and Marion county for the magnificent support they have given us in our new enterprise. Our business has been beyond our expectations, which is proof that the people were ready for just such A Mammoth Grocery Store As We Have Opened in Cummin Memorial Building.

Our unrivaled purchasing facilities and knowledge of the grocery business has worked wonders with the trade. The people declare in unmistakable tones their appreciation of the Big Wholesale and Retail Cash Grocery Store, where the stock is the largest, goods of the best quality and prices the lowest, "quality considered." No other house attempts to give such good value for so little money. Any one can make low prices on low grade of goods, but because of the low prices we make on highest quality of groceries all through the stock.

We Have a Full Supply of

Grenoble and English Walnuts, Princess Papershell Almonds, Shelled Almonds, Dehesa Raisins, Sultana Raisins, Seedless, Ondura and L. M. UNDER ADVISEMENT

JUDGE NORRIS TAKES THE NYPANO RECEIVERSHIP CASE

Arguments Were Completed Tuesday Afternoon—Verdict Rendered in the Case of the City Against the Marion Gas Light Company—Court Notes.

The STAR of Tuesday spoke of the fact that the matter of the application for the appointment of a receiver for the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio Railroad company had been taken up in the court of common pleas Thursday and how L. A. Russell, of Cleveland, having spoken in opposition to the appointment Judge Norris had gone to Upper Sandusky only to return in the middle part of the afternoon to again take up the case.

The attorneys had arrived a little after 2:30 o'clock and a few moments later Judge Norris took his place on the bench and Mr Durfee, for the plaintiff, made various citations of law in support of his client's side of the case.

Mr Durfee was followed by Mr. J. F. McNeal and Attorney Norris, of Youngstown, both of whom opposed the appointment.

Following these gentlemen Mr. W. E. Scofield made the closing argument in behalf of the plaintiff and the matter was taken under consideration by the court.

It is for the court to determine which side of the case may be the right one, but Mr. Scofield, in his short remarks, hit a popular chord when he reminded the court that it could not suppose that the court of common pleas of Summit county would show less respect to it, than it, the Marion common pleas, would show to the court at Akron Hence the inevitable conclusion that the Summit county court had been tricked and an effort made to hold the local court and bar up to ridicule, as he expressed it, to play horse with it

The case of the City of Marion against The Marion Gas Light company came up in the court of common pleas this morning.

C. C Fisher was the only witness examined and the case went to the jury, who returned the following verdict:

To The Marion Gas Light company, for property taken, $36 00 compensation and $20 damages, to Charles Lederman, $15 compensation and $7 50 damages; to Sarah and Jacob Harris, $9 compensation and $4 50 damages; to E and L Kowalke, $24 compensation and $12 damages; to Lydia, Bertha and Oscar Zimmerman, $11.80 compensation and $5 90 damages; to William Fies and Annie Fies, $12 20 compensation and $6.10 damages; to Mary Uhl, $18 compensation and $9 damages; to Jacob and Christena Theurer, $18 compensation and $9 damages; to Margaret S Leonard, Mary M. Leonard, Edward T. Leonard and Margaret S. Leonard, Jr., $21 compensation and $10 50 damages, the foregoing being the property owners along the west side of Prospect street.

The jury allowed to the property owners along the east line of the street the following amounts:

To William and Mary E. Morganthaler, $45 compensation and $50 damages; to Bennett and Mary A. Urton, $8.40 compensation and $4 20 damages; to J C. and Kate Markert, $15 compensation and $7 50 damages; to the First Reform church of Marion, $23 50 compensation and $11 75 damages; to Philip and Sophia Loyer, $30 05 compensation and $75 damages; to I. D. Cunningham, $11 compensation and $5 50 damages; to Christina May and Bertha Arthur, $10 60 compensation and $5 30 damages; to Mitchell Strelitz and Julia Strelitz, $16 compensation and $8 damages.

The proceeding was brought to condemn a strip of land three feet wide along both the east and west sides of Prospect street from Columbia to Hill streets.

Transcripts were filed in the common pleas court today in the matter of The State of Ohio against Elmer Snyder. C. B. Rickert and S C. Fairchild and in the matter of The State of Ohio against Joseph Collins, the former being from the justice court of F. M. Drake of Big Island township, and the latter from the court of Justice George McKinley. In the former case an effort will be made to get the three persons out of jail on a writ of habeas corpus.

The following cases were assigned this afternoon, for trial in the court of common pleas next week:

Bank against Bell, No. 6511, Monday, December 2

S Ulsh against Young, administrator, No 7142, Wednesday, December 4.

H. Ulsh against Young, administrator, No. 7153, Wednesday, December 4.

Brady against Michaels. No. 6933, Thursday, December 5

City of Marion against Thompson, No. 7037, Friday, December 6.

A transcript was filed in the court of common pleas Thursday evening, from the justice court of 'Squire McKinley in the case of The State of Ohio on complaint of Ida Kalp against Samuel White. The defendant has been admitted to bail.

In the case of John Moriarity against Elizabeth L. Milligan the plaintiff, by his attorney, C. F. Garberson, today filed a motion in the court of common pleas to strike out of the answer and cross-petition of defendant all redundant matter.

In the case of L. J. J. Koch against the Johnson County Savings bank, the injunction heretofore granted was made perpetual and the case dismissed at the costs of Wm. Michaels, one of the defendants.

The court of common pleas jury was excused this morning until next Friday morning.

NOTICE TO ADVERTISERS.

The STAR finds it necessary to call the attention of advertisers to its hours for receiving copy. In the desire to accommodate we have permitted a laxity of rules that has seriously inconvenienced and delayed the mechanical department of the office.

Copy for display advertisements must be at the office by 9:30 a. m. on the day it is to appear. If patrons can have advertisements reach us in advance of that hour they will not only greatly accommodate us but will secure better typography and less possibility of error.

Display advertisements for the WEEKLY STAR should reach the office by 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon of each week, as the edition goes to press at 10 a. m Friday

Local notices for the DAILY STAR may be filed up to 1 o'clock any day, but will receive better attention if they come at an earlier hour. Locals for the Weekly may be filed as late as 7:30 Friday morning.

The STAR is glad to give its advertising patrons the greatest possible latitude, but the mechanical possibilities of the very best offices in towns of this size are necessarily limited. If these hours are observed we can give better service to advertisers and place the STAR before its readers at a seasonable hour every night.

Fire on the Uhler Farm.

The dwelling house on the Uhler farm, two miles west of Marion, caught fire from a defective flue, on Tuesday forenoon. The house is occupied by Thomas Naven and family, the farm tenants, and by active efforts with buckets the flames were extinguished before they gained a dangerous headway. Mr. Naven's loss on household goods will be about $100, and Ed K. Uhler estimates the damage to the dwelling at about $100. Both losses are covered by insurance.

Close Tomorrow.

Nelson's and Turney's jewelry stores will be closed all day tomorrow, on account of holiday.

Dr. Lanceley in his lecture "The Devil of Names," delivered at the Epworth M. E church recently had several things to say of the different advertisements used to call attention to church fairs, etc. He missed, however, the novelty utilized for the advertising of the foot ball game between the Y M C. A. teams of this city and Dayton tomorrow afternoon. The ad is printed on a blank playing card, the face after the style of the deuce of heart and the printed matter says "You will be in the game at the fair grounds, Thanksgiving, '95, if you present this card and 25 cents to the gate keeper" A conjecture is also made that Dayton will be scored against for the first time.

OUR China Department

WE have never talked much about our dishes; been too busy talking furniture, carpets and stoves. But here's a little idea of what you can find in the way of nice china at our store. Nothing prettier in the world than a table set with good china. Every housekeeper takes more pride in her Haviland china dishes than in anything else--if she has them. You probably have a notion they are too expensive for you. Listen! Full dinner sets, genuine French Haviland china, either decorated or white, 101 pieces, would cost $30.00, sold always for $38.00 to $40.00. But a nice way to buy your dinner set is to get it little at a time. We sell you anything out of this stock--one-half dozen cups and saucers, one-half dozen dinner plates would cost you $5.00 to $6.00. In this way you could gradually retire your old, yellow, cracked ware and find yourself in possession of the finest ware made.

In fine English semi-porcelain ware, plain or decorated, we can show you some beautiful things in dinner sets. For instance--

101-Piece Set	$7.50
101-Piece Set	10.00
101-Piece Set	12.50
101-Piece Set	15.00

Nothing nicer made in dinner ware and nothing that would please your wife so much for a Christmas present.

FINE LAMPS.

Almost forgot to tell you of our new lamp stock. We've got some beauties. As pretty a vase lamp as you have ever seen, for $1.25, exquisitely decorated globe and shade. Other vase lamps up to $5.00. But the swell thing, you know, is the boquet lamp. We have them with all sorts of globes and shades. Lamps made of onyx, iron, brass. They make charming Christmas presents.

If you are thinking of beautiful, practical, comfortable, durable presents, come and see our stock.

RAILROAD NOTES.

Trains on the C, H. V. and T. are being delayed by the new bridge that is being constructed across the Scioto.

Cars from the west on the C. and E. came in this morning covered with snow. There was a big snow storm west of here.

There will be no locals on the railroads Thursday on account of it being a legal holiday, and business will be pretty well suspended

James Donavan, the C and E lineman, had a difficult time Tuesday repairing the effects of the storm. The lines and poles were both down in many places, but with a force of men everything was repaired so they are all working today.

The Big Four's new shop buildings at Wabash will be opened with a grand dedication ball. The event is to take place some time in January, and in addition to guests from all surrounding cities it is expected that many railroad officials and business men from Louisville, Cincinnati, Indianapolis and other important points on the Big Four system will be present.

Columbus Dispatch: It is stated that the position of general freight agent on the Big Four, which was abolished when Albert S. White retired to become general manager of the Erie Dispatch, is to be recreated and that Edward F. Cost, who represents the Big Four at Chicago as assistant general freight agent, and who has made an excellent record, is to be appointed general freight agent.

CHANGES WROUGHT IN CONGRESS BY THE REVOLUTION OF 1894.

A Startling Transformation—New Members "Fresh From the People"—Patronage For the Lucky—Cuba and the Revenue—The Navy and Rivers and Harbors.

[Special Correspondence.]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25.—Once more the biennial agony. A brand new congress, fresh from the people, is to take the legislative reins. Old clerks and other employees go, old committees are dissolved, and new ones are to take control—for the real work of congress nowadays is done in committee rooms—old schemes are as dead as Julius Caesar; scores of members of many terms' service are to be seen no more in the old seats, and the visitor who looks from the gallery upon the Fifty-fourth house will see a most impressive proof that we live in a world of change. The revolution of 1871 was more startling, and those of 1840 and 1812 involved more sudden and radical changes of policy, but as to persons the revolution of 1894 stands without a parallel in our history.

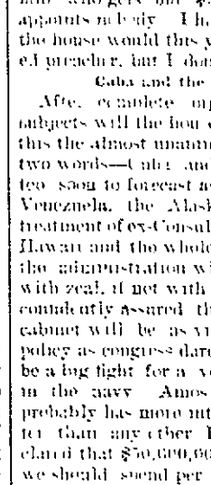
A Great Transformation.

"Fresh from the people" indeed! Never since the First congress could that backneyed phrase be so aptly applied, and even the First congress had a much larger proportion of men well known and experienced in public affairs than the Fifty-fourth. The transformation from the Fifty-third is startling, and even the Fifty-first, the last Republican congress, is but slightly represented. Whole state delegations are absolutely new men in every sense of the word. Of the 356 members of the house 158 were never in congress before, and 93 were never in a legislative body, even a town council. From Indiana and Illinois especially some of the members were so very young and so very new that the political biographers did not get their record till after the election, and in one case within my knowledge the most that could be urged in favor of the youth was that he was the son of a very brilliant soldier and had made a success as a schoolteacher.

Of the 22 Republicans from Illinois but 8 have seen service here; of Indiana's 13 members but 3; of Kentucky's 11 but 3; of Maryland's 6 but 2; of Missouri's 15 but 7, and of New York's 34 but 14, while West Virginia, Delaware, Idaho, Wyoming and all the territories but Oklahoma send men hitherto unknown alike to fame and this house. And as there are papers filed for 30 contests it is certain that the number of old men will be still further reduced. I fancy in the new state of Utah that the strangest changes have occurred. Through all the years from 1862 to 1882, from the first antipolygamy law to the last Edmunds act, it was meat and drink to the Mormon leaders to denounce the Republican party. Now these same leaders have beaten the Democrats in a commonwealth where in my time there it was taken for granted that there would not be enough Republicans to start a party organization. I have heard Brigham Young cause every national official from President Grant to the deputy marshal of Utah. His descendants are now Republicans. I have heard George Q. Cannon declare from prophecy the speedy overthrow of the United States government. His son, Frank J. Cannon, is the Republican delegate from the territory and will be one of the senators from the new state. Daniel H. Wells, commander of the "Nauvoo legion" in the Mormon war of 1857 and so long the right hand man of Brigham Young in the first presidency, always called himself a Republican, and his son, H. M. Wells, is the first governor of the new state. Editor Goodwin of the Salt Lake Tribune, once so fiercely an Mormon will probably be a senator through Colonel Isaac Trumbo, son of another famous anti-Mormon, is his strongest rival for the place. In short, the old quarrels are all made up, and Mormon and gentile are pulling together for free silver and a tariff on wool. The women of Utah could not vote this year, but will next and thereafter, and I am told the Utah men that the effect of woman suffrage will be as it has been in Wyoming—to make everything just as it was before, only a little purer.



JOHN G. FITZGERALD. [Only Republican congressman from Texas.]

Old Men and New.

Great as the changes have been, the refusal to change in some states and districts is really remarkable. Arkansas sends every member of the last congress—six Democrats. Alabama sends all three new members of nine. Republicans, however, are contesting the Second and Ninth districts and Populists the Third and Fifth, with confident swearing. Georgia returns 10 solid Democrats in the Fifty-third house. The Sixth district only makes a change—Charles F. Bradley in place of Thomas B. Cabaniss, who quits on one term. In the Seventh district, however, W. H. Felton, an old Populist hero, contests the seat of John W. Maddox, and in the Tenth Tom Watson comes back again at James C. C. Black. If Watson gets in, he and Brer Howard of Alabama can be relied upon to furnish the house with a circus.

Iowa returns nine old Republicans and two new ones, Louisiana, five old Democrats and one new one, but one seat is contested. Maine returns her four Republicans, each a leader in his class; Massachusetts, eight of her old Republicans, four new ones and one solitary Democrat, John F. Fitzgerald of Boston, who thanks heaven that contests are not favored in his part of the country. Mississippi returns five out of her seven Democrats and two new ones, but Missouri only 5 out of 17. Verily there was a flood. Texas, however, sends back four of her old men—two new Democrats and one solitary Republican, George H. Noonan, from San Antonio. Virginia lost but one Democrat and though there was a flood in Tennessee six of the old men come back with four new Republicans. From all the 28 northern states—29 with Utah—come but 13 Democrats and 3 Populists, and the seats of four of the Democrats are contested. Perhaps they had better make it unanimous.

Patronage.

The first thing after swearing in and drawing for seats will be the election of officers pursuant to the choice of the Republican caucus which is to be held on the 30th. As to the speakership, it will be merely a ratification of the party choice of Tom Reed, but there are five good paying offices in the house which go to outsiders, and just now the fight for them is extremely vigorous. Of those officials the first by a long distance is the clerk, who ranks with the members, gets $5,000 a year and has the appointment of 44 subordinates. Besides all this he has once in two years the high honor of making up the roll and presiding in the organization of a new house and is then a "bigger man than old Grant," in the language of the lamented Fitzhugh. This function of the clerk is always important, and once in our history was very dangerous. There are two candidates, both members of the Fifty-third house, General Thomas J. Henderson of Princeton, Ills., and Alexander McDowell of Sharon, Pa. Of the clerk's 44 appointees his chief clerk and the disbursing clerk are considered his personal appointments.

Next in rank is the sergeant-at-arms, who gets $4,500 per year and appoints seven subordinates, and as a matter of course there are several candidates, among whom I have heard most of Captain Thomas McKean, secretary of the national congressional Republican committee. Next is the doorkeeper, who gets $3,500 and appoints 156 subordinates, but this includes 13 soldiers, who are by special law made permanent. So there can only be an appointment in case of vacancy, and in the past four years there has been but one. He names the 33 pages, who are boys not under 12 years of age and get $2.50 per day each.

GEORGE H. MORAN. [Only Republican congressman from Texas.]

The postmaster of the house gets $2,500 and appoints 19 subordinates. For many years it has been a question whether the first deputy succeeded to all the rights and powers of the postmaster in case of the latter's death or removal, but the comptroller has recently decided that in the negative, so there has been no postmaster of the house since the death of Lycurgus M. Dilton last spring. Last of all comes the chaplain who gets but $900 per year and appoints nobody. I have been told that the house would this year elect a colored preacher, but I don't believe it.

Cuba and the Revenue.

After a complete organization, what subjects will the house tackle first? To this the almost unanimous answer is in two words—Cuba and revenue. It is too soon to forecast as to either. Then Venezuela, the Alaska boundary, the treatment of ex-Consul Waller in France, Hawaii and the whole foreign policy of the administration will be overhauled with zeal, if not with fervency. We are confidently assured that president and cabinet will be as vigorous on foreign policy as congress dare be. There will be a big fight for a very great increase in the navy. Amos Cummings, who probably has more interest in that matter than any other Democrat, has declared that $70,000,000 is the very least we should spend per year, and several other Democrats advocate even more. General Miles wants a bigger army and more fortifications and a naval militia. In short, both army and navy will come in for a great deal more and under the circumstances I consider it certain that they will get it.

This is the session for the regular river and harbor bill and it will be a big one. There will be a tremendous pressure made for such of the proposed canals as can be called national works. The regular appropriation bills are a matter of course, and all will be big. We shall have the old story of deficiencies, to quote Tom Reed—J. Milton Best of Vincennes, Indiana, and all along the shore will bring their usual overwhelming proofs—and of the thousands of measures which have been supported so many of which will go through as matters of business thinks it safe to ask for. [illegible] that would [illegible] part [illegible] will be [illegible] will be [illegible] material—enough to keep congress until the first of next session, anyhow, and don't you envy the [illegible]

FASHIONS.

Crush and Stock Collars—Paquin Points. Remodeling Old Dresses.

Cuffs, collars and collets as well as plastrons are decidedly to the front in the fashionable world this season. Crush and stock collars continue in style, made of velvet, silk or satin. Rosettes at the sides are rather passe, but points of the same or contrasting material form a pretty finish. These points are named after the Parisian modiste Paquin. One point is turned over on each side, being 1½ inches wide at the top and a sharp point at the bottom where it is even with the lower edge of the straight or crush collar.

For a demi-evening dress a collar that is very becoming to a short, full neck is of velvet, forming a deep point. The ends meet in front under two small rosettes, and the back is 3 inches deep. To the edge of this is sewed 10 inch lace, which is shown its full length, front and back, while around the points it is only 3 inches below the velvet. By adding the collar and a belt, crushed or shaped in a point of velvet, a house dress may be wonderfully freshened. Pretty collars and belts of No. 12 fancy figured or striped ribbon are made by shaping the center front with a V or dart. At the back the hooks and eyes are concealed by four loops on each side. Two long ends project sidewise, and two shorter loops are thrust straight out backward. Then for further decoration straps of the ribbon may be added over the shoulders, ending half way to the belt, back and front, under a small bow, which may hold a fancy buckle.

A perfectly plain waist may be remodeled and rendered decidedly dressy, according to The Ladies' Home Journal, which makes these foregoing suggestions, by adding a crush collar and belt of fancy silk; also a wide double box plait down the center, allowing it to drop a little over the belt. On each side of the plait place a fan of lace 8 inches deep, one long edge running under the plait and the other hanging loose. At the top of this lace fan have a rosette of ribbon or of the silk. Add three large fancy rhinestone or steel buttons to the center of the plait. Use the lace points that are sold for 10 to 20 cents apiece for one on each wrist and one on each side of the front of the collar.

Styles In Petticoats.

It is all very well to talk about women wishing to adopt masculine attire, but the frou-frou of silk petticoats will not be easily dispensed with, for, after all, they are dear to the feminine heart. Women who are particular about the hanging of their skirts take just as much trouble to have their petticoats fitted and hung as they do their dresses, contending, with reason, that no gown can hang well over a badly hung petticoat. The new ones, according to the New York Herald, have certain points in common with the much dreaded crinoline. They are gored and very full, which around the hem is a wire, quite stiff. A flounce a quarter of a yard wide has also a wire through its hem. The flounce is finished with a pinked silk ruche, and another ruche is put on as trimming. With such a petticoat as this a well gored without any stiff lining is sure to hang gracefully. Brocades, satins and silks are all used to make underskirts.

Pyjamas For Women.

LIFE OF THE HEALER

FRANCIS SCHLATTER AS HIS LONG ISLAND NEIGHBORS SAW HIM.

Fireman on a Fishing Steamer and Skillful Shoemaker—Used to Study Much—"A Little Queer"—Handkerchiefs Sent His Old Friends Haven't Worked Cures.

Francis Schlatter, the healer, is well known in Jamesport, L. I. The residents now talk of little else save their townsman. They say he is rather a good fellow, but a little queer, and seem amused at the story of the shoemaker's cures. The village is much excited over the Denver healer.

At Jamesport some interesting facts were learned by a reporter who visited the village. Whatever may be true of the cures of the healer in the west, his prescriptions do not work on his Jamesport friends, who have communicated with Schlatter in Denver. The reporter interviewed a number of people, and on the promise of their names being withheld was told how they had received handkerchiefs and other articles from Schlatter with directions how to become new in health and body. The good folks tried his cures with all the faith imaginable, but their ailments did not disappear.

Some of Schlatter's friends say he is "off," while many residents say he never was quite right in his head. He never showed any particular preference as regards religious faith. He was brought up a Catholic, so he told his friends. He had been known to walk to the Catholic church at Riverhead, a distance of six miles. He occasionally went to the village churches, Congregational and Methodist, but Schlatter was not a regular churchgoer. He went to Jamesport in 1869 with William Ryan, elder son of Thomas Ryan. Ryan was an engineer and Schlatter had been employed as his fireman on a fishing steamer. Schlatter boarded with the Ryan family. He went fishing for two seasons. Then he tired of the work and settled himself at his trade. He hired half of the house of Aunt Sally Corwins and began making shoes. He kept house for himself then. He was well up in his trade, and acted as finisher of fine handmade shoes, the parts of which were sent him from New York. Everybody agrees that Schlatter was the finest shoemaker they ever saw, and he made good wages.

Schlatter while at Jamesport is described as a tall, robust fellow of dark complexion. He did not wear whiskers, but had a becoming black mustache. He was apparently between 35 and 40 years of age. He went to Long Island from New York city, and little of his family record is known.

Daniel A. Young, justice of the peace at South Jamesport, says Schlatter was a trifle insane, but always firm in his convictions. Mr. Young says that Schlatter was always a great Republican until 1892, when he suddenly changed and became a Socialist. He believed that the Socialist Labor party would win that year. During the latter part of his stay Schlatter told his friends of his strange dreams, when beautiful images appeared before his eyes.

Schlatter, when he went to Jamesport, had some money. His hobby for a long time was silver mines and the west, where he said he intended to make his future home. At the Ryan homestead they spoke well of the healer. He was a great student. Every night until a late hour the light in his room was burning and Schlatter sat there studying something.

Schlatter boarded for a year with Mrs. S. Bartlett. Mrs. Bartlett says he was an excellent boarder. Her son Dennis says he seldom if ever went out of the house of an evening. He noticed nothing strange about Schlatter, he said.

Schlatter invested his money in speculating in a western silver mine company. He went away from Jamesport in 1893 to take charge of his mining stock and to make his fortune, as he said. These hopes were blasted when Schlatter reached New Mexico, and the Jamesport people believe that it was this great disappointment that affected his mind and made him the figure he is today.—Brooklyn Eagle.

An Up to Date Woman.

A young woman who is making a big success of farming on a large and varied scale is one of the principal exhibitors in the agricultural sections at the Atlanta exposition. She is Miss Annie Dennis of Talbotton, Ga., and is about 25 years old. She has a fine estate of about a thousand acres, on which she has a stock farm, a dairy, an extensive piggery, a vineyard and a canning and preserving establishment. She personally directs the work on the estate, and has made a notable success in every branch. She began farming seven years ago, and since then has taken more than a hundred prizes at fairs with various products of her farm. She ascribes her success to a long course of study in agricultural problems and to the utilization of every proved scientific method in her farming operations.

Too Strong a Diet.

Parents and caretakers of young children should be warned by the example of little Marguerite Freeman of Newark, N. J., to not feed them safety pins. This little tot suffered for five weeks under the supposition of diphtheria, until the successful operation of tracheotomy relieved her throat of a full grown safety pin that had been held in place—rather naturally, we suppose—by its spring.—New York Tribune.

Secretary Carlisle's Only Ambition.

Secretary Carlisle, unlike his predecessor, is not a candidate for re-election next year, and when asked on the subject frequently said that he would not think of going to the senate. The only ambition the secretary of the treasury has is to once more become a private citizen and resume the practice of the law.—Louisville Journal.

SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

The Cycle Idea Newly Applied—Folding Bicycles and Flying Light Artillery.

By all the best military experts the bicycle has come to be recognized as an important aid in warfare, once its powers are properly applied. In exactly what manner it shall play a part has not been quite plain until now. An ingenious Frenchman has hit upon its use for soldiers as a machine that may be folded up, strapped to the back and carried across country until a good ground enables the wheelmen to race with the wind.

The machine folds up so as to bring both wheels flat against each other. It can be carried in the hand like a valise or on the back like a haversack. The machine has been successfully tried and found to be as firm and rigid as the best safety, notwithstanding its system of folding up. The rider's weight is supported entirely on the axle of the rear wheel. The frame is practically useless. It can be run at a speed of 12 miles an hour, and in an instant can be folded up and slung over the back.

By its usage in war it will enable the infantry to reconnoiter the enemy's position and to send mounted scouts and patrols to a great distance. These divisions of bicycle mounted infantry can cover their tracks, choosing wooded territory, avoiding frequented roads, and following stealthily in the tracks of the enemy's cavalry can overlook their camps and bring back a faithful report of the hostile regiments.

Says a French writer, "Cavalrymen, who until now have been so justly proud of their ability to execute these delicate missions, are naturally opposed to the introduction of the wheel, but it has been proved that an infantry officer, mounted on a folding bicycle and followed by three or four picked cyclers carrying their guns, can accomplish such a mission in less time and with more certain results."

General Duchesne, reading the report of the French bicycle convention, exclaimed, "Ah, if Napleon had only had these bicycles!"

In addition to the foregoing the New York World tells that an American wheel company is engaged in perfecting two appliances of the cycle idea to modern warfare. A jealously guarded secret is that of a rapid firing magazine gun attached to the handle bar of a bicycle. The deadly weapon, discharging 400 shots a minute from its flaklike arrangement of glistening barrels, is operated by the rider, the same power that propels the wheel being used to fire the gun at will. A platoon of cyclists mounted on these death dealing engines would work great havoc upon a mob or an enemy at close range.

The other engine, not as yet perfected to the inventor's satisfaction, is called the "American flying artillery." The small cannon is to be a rapid firing breechloader. Two men ride the machine. The ammunition is carried on another wheel of similar construction. In action the riders dismount, swing the carriage around, fire a volley or two and then, remounting, resume their flight.

From the Earth to the Moon.

A voyage to the moon is a project which is put forward as the crowning point to the Paris exhibition of 1900. M. Mantois, the author, does not, however, propose to carry his passengers to the lunar regions in an aerial projectile car in the style of Jules Verne, but he proposes to bring down the moon to the reach of the people. The plan as detailed by a foreign journal is to construct a telescope nearly 200 feet in length, and its objective glass will have a diameter of something over 4 feet 3 inches, the largest in the world. This colossal tube would be placed horizontally, and the image of the moon would be reflected by what is termed a mirror plane 6 feet 6 inches in diameter and 15 inches in thickness. Its weight would be nine at 8,000 pounds. A special feature of the idea is that the image of the moon should be thrown upon a screen placed in a hall large enough to hold 600 spectators. It is calculated that with an apparatus of these dimensions it would be possible to discern objects of the size of Notre Dame cathedral towers.

A New Illuminant.

Some day we shall perhaps settle on a universal domestic illuminant. Will it be acetylene? If so, we shall want a shorter name for it, but that can be shelved for the present. Acetylene is said to give a flame 10 or 12 times brighter than an ordinary gas jet, or 4½ times brighter than the very best gas burner can yield. Moreover, acetylene gives out much less heat than gas and very much less vapor. Add to these advantages the fact that a cyclone can be liquefied with ease and kept in liquid form, and you have the claims of acetylene in the rough. It is curious that acetylene has become commercially possible as an illuminant by developments in electricity, with which it will now have to compete.

FESTIVAL WEAR.

Gowns For Dress Occasions—Spangled Lace and Passementerie.

Trimmings are this winter infinitely varied, although spangles and all jeweled and metal effects are in the van of popular favor. Embroideries, both plain and beaded; rich passementeries, many of them combined with fur; renaissance and Venetian embroideries; lace, particularly spangled lace—all these are quite a la mode, and plainness, as it was understood a few years ago, is a thing forgotten. Spangled lace and spangled passementerie are used for costumes of highest ceremony and are considered to give a toilet what the French call "cachet," and which is a thing impossible to be rendered adequately in English words. "Style" is vulgar and commonplace, and "fashion" does not convey the exact meaning. Since France sets the example in dress, it may well claim to possess the only proper words for describing its best effects. Whatever prejudice one may have in favor of one's native American, it must give way before the necessity of using the proper technicalities.

Damasks have returned to popular regard and are employed for the most elegant toilets. They are woven usually in the most fashionable colors, green and reddish brown being a favorite combination, as well as blue and reddish brown. The blue is much on the tone of royal blue.

Velvet in oriental and faience styles is exceedingly fashionable, but expensive. This latter quality causes it to be used more as a trimming than for complete costumes, and it forms quilles, revers and similar adornments more often than gowns. Velvet waists are often seen and are a feature of the new styles.

For visiting costumes many gowns and capes are made en suite, and if the costume is carefully selected the cape may also be worn with other gowns. Discretion is not only the better part of valor, but of taste.

A cut is given of a pretty gown of white taffeta, with a pompadour flower pattern. The plain skirt is arranged in godets. The bodice, of accordion plaited cream mousseline de soie, has a guimpe of the same material, which may be omitted at pleasure, the line of junction being concealed by a large bow of mauve satin ribbon in front and at the back by a band of the same, with a chou at each end. Epaulets of lace fall over the balloon sleeves of taffeta, and a draped belt and collar of mauve satin and mauve satin bands at the elbow complete the costume.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

CAPES AND COATS.

Large Silk and Velvet Collars—Cloth Costumes Trimmed With Fur.

Velvet, both plain and ornamental, is having an immense vogue. Velvet blouses are to be much worn, the oriental designs in delicate coloring being particularly fashionable.

The large guipure collar is giving way to collars of silk and velvet of a similar shape. These collars are often cut in tabs and are always lined with a contrasting color.

Fur capes are of great variety and are delightfully warm and becoming. They all fit smoothly over the shoulders and flare out into voluminous flutes below, but are variously finished around the neck, the favorite collar seeming to be of the medici shape. They are lined with rich brocade.

White lisle thread gloves of fine quality are being worn in Paris, and large glove buttons are taking the place of the ordinary small ones.

Small but elaborate and expensive fans are the rule this winter, spangles and painted medallions being the favorite decoration for them.

Cloth or velvet out of door costumes in black, pansy or violet shades, trimmed simply with bands of fur, have rather a vogue in Paris just now. Astrakhan, marten, sable and blue fox are among the fashionable furs.

MARIE LOUISE CAPE.

Many cosiques and tight coats are seen, with long basques, made of rich goods embroidered with flowers. Hats are rather smaller than they were, but the fashion of erect trimming still prevails.

Capes of velours du nord are exceedingly fashionable in Paris. They are trimmed with astrakhan or with exceedingly fine jet in the form of garlands, falls, arabesques and palm leaves.

The illustration shows a full cape of dark green velours du nord, bordered with a band of thick black ostrich feather trimming. It is additionally adorned with a rich embroidery of black spangles. The feather band forms a medici collar, much rippled behind, the ripples being separated by couples of very wide black satin ribbon. The hat worn with this cape is of green chenille and is trimmed with ruby velvet.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

How a Woman May Carve a Turkey and Keep a Sharp Knife.

It is pleasant to see a woman carve, if she does it deftly. An exchange even discovered something appropriate and almost Scriptural in a woman dispensing food to her household. It remarks that English women nearly always carve, but in this country the work is almost invariably relegated to the men. To save strength, time and patience in carving it is absolutely necessary to have a sharp knife. As a general rule, cut across the grain. A turkey should be placed with the head toward the right hand of the carver. The breast is generally cut in slices parallel to the breastbone, but if the turkey is large first cut the wings off close to the body and then cut across. A good way to keep a knife perfectly sharp and make your husband think you give him the tenderest joints is to use a "rifle," such as the farmers sharpen their scythes upon. A few turns on this will give an edge that will cut through anything.

Free the ends of the drumsticks from the body. Place the turkey on the platter with the head at the left. Unless the platter be very large, provide an extra dish; also a fork for serving. Insert the carving fork across the middle of the breastbone. Cut through the skin between the breast and the thigh. Bend the leg over and cut off close to the body and through the joint. Shave off the breast in thin slices, slanting from the front of the breastbone down toward the wing joint. Tip the bird over slightly, and with the point of the knife remove the oyster and the small, dark portion found on the side bone. Then remove the fork from the breast and divide the leg and wing. Cut through the skin between the body and the breast, and with a spoon remove a portion of the stuffing. Serve light or dark meat and stuffing, as preferred.

If carved in this way, the turkey will be left with one-half entire, and if placed on a clean platter, with the cut side nearest the carver and garnished with parsley, will present nearly as fine an appearance, to all but the carver, as when first served. When there are many to be served, take off the leg and the wing from each side and slice the whole of the breast before removing the fork; then divide as required.

The Fashionable Wood Again.

The question of what will be the fashionable wood of the day has again come to the front, and a member of a leading decorative firm, quoted by The Decorator and Furnisher, tells that highly polished black walnut is once more to be in style, not, as formerly, for everyday articles of trade work—the drain in that direction has been too severe in the past decade to allow of this—but for strictly high class work. Persons who have been trying vainly to get rid of the black walnut furniture and replace it with mahogany or other high grade woods may content themselves with the thought that their belongings will soon be right up to date. And thus the world wags on. What is "in" today is "out" tomorrow, and if you would be up to the fin de siecle hang on to your old furniture when it has gone "out," for in this erratic era of fashionable fads and fancies it is only a question of time when it will come "in" again.

Baked Apple Dumplings.

Take a quart of flour and work into it a spoonful each of butter and lard. Wet it with a pint of buttermilk containing a spoonful of soda. Roll out and cut out circular pieces, using a saucer to determine the size. Have ready some pleasant sour apples and place as many of the slices upon one half of the crust as the other will cover. Wet the edges and press them together. Place the dumplings in a baking tin as soon as prepared, prick them with a fork and bake until the apple is cooked. Serve with a hot sauce or sweetened and flavored cream.

A Christmas Balloon.

Buy an ordinary toy balloon and equip it with a small basket, as a car to the balloon. Buy some small dolls and dress them up in mascaline attire and tie them with some improvised luggage into the car, and the result is a toy which will delight the children, as it is a unique idea and a pretty ornament for the Christmas tree as well. If used in the house during the winter, it will not be lost, as it frequently is when played with outdoors, the string having an unfortunate way of slipping from the little hands. The foregoing suggestion is from The Household, which illustrates one of these pleasing toys.

A cup of black coffee will destroy the fumes of the malodorous onion. The "fad" of having peppermints and wintergreen cream candies on the table has method in its madness, as one of these will destroy the odor left by wine.

WERE YOU EVER STUCK

When You Thought You Were Getting a Bargain?

A great many people have an idea that when they buy a suit of clothes for two or three dollars less than they were asked that they struck a snap, only to find out after a trial that they had hold of the hot end of the poker.

There Are No Hot Ends in This Store.

Our one price system does away with all that. When you pay $10 for a suit you get a $10 suit, and when you pay $15 you get one worth $15.

Isn't That a Fair Way To Deal?

We don't blow about giving $20 suits for $10 or any of that nonsense, but we do give full value for every cent spent with us, and shall continue to do so in all our transactions.

Come in and look through our stock---You are not insulted if you don't buy.

A SAVINGS BANK.

Marion Will have Such an Institution About the First of the Year.

The city is to have a savings bank, and it will be started in a short time. At present the STAR is unable to give the names of those who will be interested, but it has it from an authentic source that an institution of this kind is to be organized and conducted in Marion.

It is expected that the company will be organized about the first of the year.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

Marion Commandery, No. 36, Knights Templar, will elect officers at a meeting Thursday night for the coming year.

The Delaware county infirmary directors are here today, making the settlement with the Marion county board.

The STAR foot ball team are again winners, having defeated the North building team this afternoon by a score of 20 to 0.

C. J. Long has completed a set of paintings in miniature for the opera house and they have been submitted. The work is excellent.

Ned Burke has offers from Delaware and Mt. Vernon to organize a minstrel show there of local talent. He has not decided what he will do.

The union Thanksgiving service will be held at the German M. E. church Thursday morning and Rev. A. Vandersall will deliver the sermon.

The Urbana papers announce the approaching marriage of Miss Lizzie Bartley, of this city, to Mr. W. H. Dombaugh, of Mt. Gilead, at Chicago, Christmas.

The camp of tramps along the Erie and Big Four tracks in West Marion has been started again. Twelve or thirteen of them camped there Tuesday night.

A party of Columbus hunters are camped on what is known as the "killdeer" lands, about twelve miles west of this city. They have been there for the past week.

Miss Anna Baldwin, residing at 325 Windsor street, fell this afternoon and sustained severe injuries to her side. Dr. A. Rhu was summoned and attended to her injuries.

The son of Albert Irey, who was so painfully burned, and who it was believed could not recover, is now convalescing nicely, and will soon be able to be up and around again.

A complaint was filed to Marshal Blain today in regard to a number of boys that loaf about the Bennett building. They insult ladies on the stairs and are of much annoyance.

The Clover Leaf club, of Bucyrus, will give a dance this evening, and several from this city will be in attendance. A number of invitations have been sent out to Marion young people.

The Marion Advertising company has rented the room over the Ice Cream factory and are fitting it up in fine shape. The company is about ready for business, and their quarters will be filled with work in a short time.

It is given out that there are but slight hopes for the recovery of Miss Betsy Munson, the old lady who was hurt by falling in the Darmody cellar. She may live for several weeks yet, but death is believed to be almost certain.

Mr. Edeell, of the Kenton News, was in the city today, to make Marionites acquainted with the plans of the Daily News special excursion party to Atlanta. Marionites who go to Atlanta with the News party will find a pleasant time.

Joseph Snickenberger has completed the lower floor of his new building and will move into it the latter part of this week. His partner will still continue with the firm. The upper portion of the building will not be completed at present.

Nine tramps sawed wood Tuesday night for their lodging at the Hotel Carlos. Marshal Blain has arranged it so that they must saw what wood they use before they sleep. It is a pretty good idea, and there is something about a tramp that makes a fire feel good.

A son of Price Lewis was injured at the Marion Tool works today. He was working at an emery wheel, and several pieces of it flew off and struck him in the right eye. He was taken to the office of Drs. Weeks, where he was given medical attention.

Mrs. Weeks, a resident of Prospect street, was in the mayor's office Tuesday afternoon and wanted two boys named Fox and Able arrested. Their dog had been killing Mrs. Weeks' chickens and her son shot the animal. This enraged young Fox and Able and they decided to do violence to Weeks, and catching him administered a whipping. A warrant was not issued, but the mayor ordered all parties to be more peaceful.

The Rebekah Election.

There was a very interesting meeting of the Rebekahs Tuesday evening. Besides the election of officers, seven candidates were initiated. The following are the officers elected:

Mrs. Ella Aley, noble grand; Mrs. Christopher Martin, vice grand; Miss Libbie Dairy, secretary; Mrs. Rebecca Miller, representative to state assembly.

LOOKING CHEERFUL

Are the Conditions of the Marion Malleable Iron Company.

The price of goods made from malleable iron is advancing. The Marion Malleable Iron company with all of its competitors have been obliged to advance the price of their work. The advance of course in pig iron has caused this raise in the price of goods. In speaking of the matter this morning D. W. Murphy, the general manager of the Malleable company, stated he was now making arrangements to make a renewal of four of his largest contracts and that there would naturally be an advance over last year's rates.

The Malleable company has been very fortunate this year, and in the renewal of the contracts they have not had one refusal. All the firms the company did work for last year so far have renewed their contracts as soon as the old ones run out, and at the advance in the price of the goods. In December the rest will be made and Mr. Murphy has prospects of some, in fact, many new patrons. This has been a busy year, and with the new stock that is being raised the company is becoming something of a factor among Marion enterprises.

SHOES FOUND

Which Were Taken from an Erie Freight Car Presumably by Tramps.

A young man named Anderson, while passing along the Erie track early this morning on his way to work, found a case containing a number of separate shoe boxes. He informed the police and Officer Munsell went to the place and found a box containing five pairs of Red Congress shoes. There were also nineteen empty boxes about the ground where the shoes had been found.

Investigation proves that they were taken from an Erie train Tuesday evening and the train was evidently standing still at the time of the theft. The shoes were from Boston and were consigned to P. S. Nerman, Ind., and were of a cheap order. In connection with the robbery it is pretty certain that it was the work of tramps. Between the two tracks and near the Standard Oil plant nineteen tramps camped Tuesday night, and it is believed that they took the shoes, put what they wanted on and left the rest lay.

NEW BUILDING

To Be Erected by the Marion Manufacturing Company.

A new building is to be erected at the Marion Manufacturing plant, and work will soon be commenced on the structure. It is only to be a temporary one, however, for it is to be replaced in a year by a brick structure.

The new building will be a one-story affair, but will be of immense proportions, and is to be used as a store room for separators and engines. Treasurer Ackerman stated this morning that he did not know just how large it would be, but the company is preparing to manufacture goods so that they can meet the demands, and it was thought wise to have further store room.

Marion County Soldiers.

It might be of more than passing interest to STAR readers to know the exact number of old soldiers in the county, and the number of members in the G. A. R. according to the report of the Adjutant General in which he gives the number of old soldiers in each county, and also the number of G. A. R. members.

There were 541 old soldiers and sailors and of these 231 are members of the G. A. R. According to the report the average is about the same all over the state.

"Going into a decline." How often do we hear this expression. What does it mean? It means that people are losing flesh, growing thin, wasting.

The way to correct this condition is to improve the digestion. The condition arises from an inability to eat and digest food. In fact food does more harm than good because it ferments and putrefies in the stomach, developing poisonous substances which when absorbed cause various diseases.

What is required is that the stomach be made to perform its duties. The Shaker Digestive Cordial is a food already digested and a digester of foods as well. It will make the stomach healthy. Get a book from the druggist and read about it.

A California chemist has robbed castor oil of its bad taste. LANOL is its name.

Among the Juveniles.

Three or four little youngsters coming along south Prospect street on their way home from school at the South building, Tuesday evening, were overheard discussing what people were thankful for Thanksgiving time. After all had given their versions one little fellow said: "I'm thankful cause papa's going down town and buy a lot of good things at Clark & Benedict's for Thanksgiving dinner."

We Close

Thanksgiving Day at 12 o'clock.

We will spend the afternoon with the balance of a thankful people in observing the great holiday, and our salesforce will enjoy a needed rest.

We are grateful for a matchless trade--grateful for so much in a mercantile way (and it is of that only that we write here) that we cannot refrain a wish that all others may hail the day in a like spirit.

When the day is passed we shall prove the gratitude we owe our trade in a more substantial way.
